2012 LEGACY CHOICE

HACKNEY residents' still have time to comment on planning applications that will determine the shape of the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park after the 2012 Games.

Currently, plans are in place for a circuit for competitive cyclists to be built so that it would cut through the legacy parkland in Hackney, and across the River Lea, making areas of the park, and the water's edge less accessible to park users.

However, the Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC) has put in planning applications to change the scheme to one that will open up 1.8 hectares of uninterrupted open space and 144m of usable riverside, allowing the public better access to the water's edge through open parkland.

This new plans would move the cycle circuit to the other side of the River Lea. The Council is in support of the OPLC's revised plans, which it believes would create a higher quality parkland for residents.

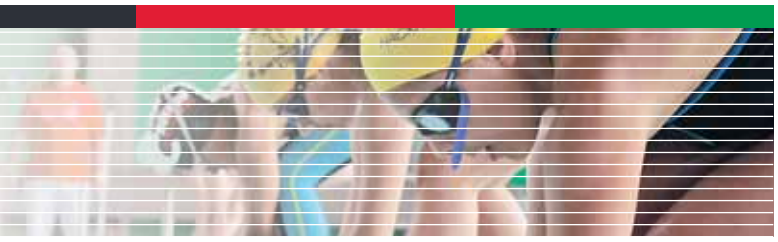

The Council's Chief Executive, Tim Shields, said: "As far as the Council is concerned, the new OPLC plans make far more sense for the people of Hackney; a high quality park with open space that all residents can enjoy, rather than one interrupted by a high-speed, competitive cycle track, which cuts off a huge area of green space. However, we understand the competitive cycling community and Sport England prefer the original scheme, so we would urge local people to look at the proposals and have their say."

Home sweet home

It was 35 years ago, in June 1976, that Mr and Mrs Ball moved into Needwood House on Woodberry Down. Now they are settling into one of the first new homes to be completed on the estate as part of the Council's 20-year regeneration programme

RESIDENTS have been moving into the first homes for social renting built as part of the Council's 20-year regeneration programme for Woodberry Down.

Since 12 May, former Council tenants have been relocated to the new 'Reservoir' apartment block, at the Old School Site on the estate, which are managed by Genesis Housing Association.

The 117 new homes are a range of one, two and three-bedroom apartments, built by Berkeley Homes with funding from the Homes and Communities Agency.

Among the very first to move into the new properties were Harry Ball, 82, and his wife Olive, 77. It was 35 years ago that Mr Ball, a retired postman, and Olive, a house wife and former cleaner, first moved to the estate with their three young children. They were all thrilled with a top floor, three-bedroom flat in Needwood House – described at the time by Mrs Ball as 'a palace'.

So when the couple first learnt of the regeneration scheme for Woodberry Down, they were shocked and initially didn't want to move, as they thought Needwood House would be home for the rest of their lives.

But now they are living in a 'top quality property', with an amazing view across East and West reservoirs, Stoke Newington, and the City. Mrs Ball said: "It was hard at first getting used to all the windows. You can see the boats out there on the reservoir, and the birds. The city lights up in the evening, it's lovely."

Her husband added: "We watched this building being built when we lived on the top floor of our old flat.

"The doors are solid, all windows are double glazed and we can't fault the developers, as they were very much on the ball."

Genesis Housing Association has a housing officer who visits residents to help make the process of settling into a new home less daunting. Mrs Ball said: "We are really enjoying living in our new property. We have always lived in Hackney, and this is the best part of the borough for us."

Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing, said: "I would like to welcome residents to their new homes at Woodberry Down. This represents a significant milestone for the 20-year regeneration."

Ruche Peng, Regeneration Manager for Genesis Housing Association, added: "This is a very exciting time for residents moving into their properties, and we are positive about the future of the regeneration."

The next homes due to be completed for social renting will be at the Woodberry Grove North site.

The original cycle circuit plans were created before the Legacy Company was set up as a dedicated body to plan and oversee the long-term development of the Park. Since then the OPLC has produced a masterplan to develop it over the next 25 years.

Andrew Altman, Chief Executive of the OPLC, said: "We think our plans make a better park for everyone to use. By having the top-class cycle circuit on one side of the river, we can strengthen public access to the river and create a generous open parkland for all types of public recreation and community activity.

"This area would also have spectacular views of the Velopark and the Lee Valley. We want to hear from everyone, and for Hackney residents to make their views known."

The planning consultation closes at midnight on 6 July, however people can still submit their views after this period.

News in brief

OAP manslaughter verdict

Victim Eveline Kelmenson

A MAN has been found guilty of the manslaughter of a pensioner in her Stamford Hill home.
Kuba Dlugosz, 33, was found guilty at the Old Bailey on 23 June of manslaughter and burglary. He will be sentenced at a later date.
Eveline Kelmenson, 83, was left bound and gagged on the bedroom floor in her nightclothes after her home in Leweston Place was burgled on 27 November 2008. Her wedding ring, a gold necklace and key pendant were taken, and her property ransacked, before she was abandoned. She died of hypothermia and her body lay undiscovered for five weeks.
Police were called to the property on 1 January 2009, after concerns were raised for Miss Kelmenson's safety. Dlugosz was arrested and subsequently charged on 28 July 2010.
Detective Chief Inspector Stewart Hill, who led the investigation, said: "Miss Kelmenson must have been absolutely terrified the night Dlugosz entered her home and restrained her on the floor. As he left her property, carrying her valued possessions, he didn't spare one single thought for her welfare. The determination and tenacity of all those involved in the investigation has helped to secure the conviction of a ruthless and wicked individual. I can only hope that this result today brings some solace to Eveline's family."

Love London Fields

A SERIES of awareness days have been taking place as part of a Council campaign to encourage residents to 'Love London Fields' this summer.
Council staff, police and safer neighbourhoods teams will next be patrolling on 6 August to encourage people to use recycling and waste bins, and ensure any barbecues are on stands in a designated area – which is being trialled at the Broadway Market end of the park. People barbecuing outside the area will be asked to move. Action will also be taken to tackle any anti-social behaviour or illegal trading in London Fields.
The Council is conducting a survey on the barbecue area trial. For Love London Fields info and to respond to the consultation, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/londonfields; call: 020 8356 4899; or e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk

AS a girl, Patou lived by the sea in The Gambia. But only now – in her retirement – is she on the way to achieving her dream of learning to swim.

"I was a non-swimmer," she says. "I was scared of the water, but since coming for aqua aerobics, I've got used to it. I started doing swimming as part of the New Age Games in May. My teacher says I'm doing really well but everything takes time."

The New Age Games is a free, varied programme of physical activity for the over-50s, which kicked off in November. Funded by the Council and run by its 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games' Unit, the games aim to encourage older people to live an independent, healthy lifestyle.

The swimming group meets weekly under the guidance of award-winning swimming coach, Vicki Carter, at Kings Hall Leisure Centre, E5. Gliding on her back with the help of her teacher, pupil Maria seems relaxed, but after she nearly drowned as a small child, her fears stopped her from getting into the water. She finds the social contact helps to break down barriers. She said: "It's a lovely group. We feel free; we feel integrated. It's not only the learning, it's the socialising. I progress every time."

Since retiring a year ago after 40 years as a nurse, Sinda has thrown herself into the programme. As well as swimming, she is also learning to ride a bike. The current round of New Age Games activities runs until 29 July.

> "We feel free, we feel integrated. It's not only the learning, it's the socialising. I progress every time I come"

Case study: Annie Mangion, 72

Annie is very proud that the 2012 Games are going to be on her doorstep and wants to show people that 'you're never too old' to get involved in sport. Over the last three years, Annie has gone from being too frightened of water to even get in the pool, to competing for Hackney in a swimming competition and taking part in two Swimathons. Annie was born in Dublin but has lived in Hackney for 50 years. She has four children and seven grandchildren, with another on the way. She has had cancer twice and a mild stroke, but now that she has taken up sport, feels fitter, more confident and healthier than ever before. She says: "I've got no time to be lonely, I'm so busy with my swimming – and I am also taking up canoeing." Coach, Vicki, who has nominated Annie as a 2012 torchbearer, says: "If Annie is in the pool you know it, because you will hear her laughing and telling jokes."

Back in the square

HOXTON Square has re-opened to the public after undergoing a facelift to spruce it up.

The improvements – part of the Council's investment in parks and green spaces across the borough – include:

- New flowers, shrubs and a revived lawn
- More seating
- A restored drinking fountain
- Re-laid path around the edge of the square
- New bat and bird boxes.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, visited the square with a group of children from nearby St Monica's Primary School on 29 June. He said: "Hackney is lucky to have some wonderful parks and green spaces that are loved by residents and visitors alike.

"We know how important they are, which is why the Council is investing in and improving areas like Hoxton Square, so that we maintain the high standards we have come to expect from Hackney's parks."

The area around Hoxton Square is home to a variety of art galleries, restaurants, bars and pubs and a very popular place to relax. The work was carried out as a result of consultation with residents and visitors to determine what kinds of improvements should be made.

The Council has also made improvements to Hackney Downs Pavilion, and the park also now has four tennis courts and resurfaced basketball courts.

Nathaniel said: "This is a fantastic opportunity. We have learnt so much and each day we work, we pick up a different skill."

Hackney Homes is currently recruiting to three positions for apprentices in the electrical, carpentry and gas trades. If you are aged 16 to 18 and would like to apply, call: 020 8356 6935 for more info about eligibility.

It's playtime

WHETHER it's because of the desert island and pirate ship, or the swings and springy things, Clissold Park's new play area seems to be a big hit.

All the equipment in the play area – which opened in early June – has been made from natural or recycled resources reformed into bridges, climbing boulders, hollow logs and tractor tyre swings.

To boot, there's a swooping sand valley, climbing webs and, for smaller children, swings and roundabouts.

And since May, young skateboarders, roller-bladers and BMX riders have been experiencing the jumps and mounds at Clissold's wheels park.

A multi-use games area for five-a-side football, basketball and table tennis has also been created.

Caroline Millar, Chair of the Clissold Park User Group, said: "What is really great about the play area is that there is something for everyone – my 13-year-old and her friends, my eight-year-old and my three-year-old. Getting children and parents involved in the design has paid off."

The project is part of the Council's £9million Clissold Park restoration project, the biggest transformation of the park in over a century. Among the improvements is the refurbishment of Grade II listed Clissold House – which will have function rooms available for hire. There will also be new and renovated animal and bird enclosures and a butterfly dome.

Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care, and Culture, Cllr Jonathan McShane said: "This ambitious project to transform Clissold Park is nearing completion. There is a little more work to be done but when it is finished, it is going to bring this wonderful park back to its former glory and make it a place that we can all be really proud of."

Bike Across the Borough

Pupils test out Hackney's new 2012 walking & cycling route as they celebrate national Bike Week

MORE than 100 primary school children were the first to test out the new 2012 Hackney Parks Walking and Cycling Route on 23 June, as they celebrated national Bike Week with a mass ride.

The 'Bike Across the Borough' event was organised by the Council and The Learning Trust, and saw children cycling the six-mile route from Finsbury Park to the Olympic Park.

Starting at Parkwood Primary School, N4, the ride followed the new 2012 route through Clissold Park, Hackney Downs and Well Street Common, with more schools joining on the way. The ride ended at social enterprise and community venue, the View Tube, which overlooks the Olympic Park.

Students, school staff and cycling instructors then headed to Well Street Common in time for lunch, where they listened to Olympic medallist and long-time GB cycling team member, Bryan Steel, and competed in a static bike race put on by British Cycling.

Bryan said: "Cycling all the way across a built up area, seeing such a large group of young people on bikes, and seeing the Olympic Park for the first time was great. It's going to be a moment in my life I'll remember forever."

The ride was a chance for students to practice on-road cycling skills learned this year through national standards cycle training, while experiencing how easy and fun it is to get across the borough by bike.

> "Seeing the Olympic Park for the first time was great. It's going to be a moment in my life I'll remember forever"

The new route was funded by the Olympic Delivery Authority with support from Transport for London, and put in place by the Council. Travelling to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games by foot or by bike will be much easier thanks to the new route, and it will leave a lasting legacy.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "It was great to see so many young people taking part. Having the event on World Olympic Day was a perfect way for our young residents to celebrate the new walking and cycling route our borough has gained as a result of being a host for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. I look forward to seeing many people using the new route during, before and after the Games, and would love to see Bike Across the Borough become an annual event."

Steve Belk, Acting Chief Executive of The Learning Trust, added: "We hope that after their experience at this event more children will feel confident about cycling to school, and parents will feel encouraged to leave the car at home. Cycling to school helps children to be healthier, happier and more alert for lessons."

Hackney

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Together we are stronger

ONE of the great things about Hackney is the way people get on together, says Mary Cannon. Adding: "That means we can work together and support each other."

Mary, who is Chair of the Community Empowerment Network (CEN), knows Hackney's voluntary and community sector well. It's one of the most vibrant and complex in Britain, with an estimated 1,800 organisations operating inside the borough's borders.

These community and voluntary groups make up the less visible networks and social bonds that are a part of Hackney's fabric. They are an intricate mix, ranging from international charities to small groups of interest that, together, represent the voices of local people and address their different needs.

Mary has spent her life at the centre of this network. After attending Dalston County School for Girls, a predecessor of the Petchey Academy, she embarked on a career in the voluntary and community sector, becoming one of its key representatives.

She says: "If you look at the history of Hackney you see a wide range of people coming here, perhaps to escape persecution, but certainly to live in an area that welcomes new arrivals. A lot of organisations formed following the arrival of people from different communities, and these groups contribute to Hackney's cohesive community today."

Mary's CV tells a story of a life dedicated to the rights of people and harnessing the power of community. Highlights include working with others at Age Concern Hackney to set up innovative projects like Hackney Silver Surfers in 2002, supporting and training older people to use the internet; and AgeWell, a service offering mid life support and advice.

She was Chair of Governors at De Beauvoir Primary School, is currently CEO of Hackney Marsh Partnership, and has worked for both the local NHS and Hackney Council; she was also a ward councillor for Dalston in the early-1980s.

The CEN that she chairs gives the sector a collective voice. Mary likens it to an onion, with the different layers representing groups, networks and individuals, brought together as a single entity. As a member of local strategic partnership Team Hackney, it is a key player in decisions made about the borough.

"It is encouraging that the Council, NHS, police, education services and others do listen and do respond, and want to work with us in identifying and solving issues for Hackney people," she adds.

"As a result, we are all working together to support people in Hackney during these difficult times for many individuals and communities."

Q: I lost my Green Box a while back and have been using an old storage container to store my recycling, however it's not always collected. Why?

A: If you have lost your Green Box, you can order another one from the recycling hotline (below). There is no limit on the amount you order, and they stack neatly inside one another when empty if storage is an issue. The boxes are made from 100 per cent recycled plastic and are delivered free of charge within five working days.

Crews are instructed to collect only these Council-issued boxes, which have a lip that hooks onto the side of the collection truck to help with the sorting of materials. They are also designed so that they can be lifted safely and easily. Remember to write your house number in the space provided to help collection crews return boxes back to the correct property.

Volunteers from BNY Mellon next to one of their completed loggeries

Bankers bug out

VOLUNTEERS from financial institution BNY Mellon spent a day volunteering at Haggerston Park to help improve the area for wildlife.

They were taught how to construct insect loggeries and learnt why these support wildlife in urban parks. Loggeries provide a habitat for many insects to flourish, which are a valuable food source for birds and bats. Council staff worked with London Wildlife Trust to run the day on 8 June.

Steve Harris, from BNY Mellon, said: "There was lots of great feedback from the team who found this both very hard work, but a lot of fun too. I sincerely hope the loggeries stay for many years – as it takes up to six for beetle larvae to hatch."

Haggerston Park has a woodland area and a newly renovated pond, which provides a great habitat for birds, dragonflies and frogs. The Council works with a number of groups to look after Hackney's green spaces, and is happy to hear from potential corporate volunteers.

Summer fun for youngsters

THE award-winning St Mary's Secret Garden, in Haggerston, is opening its doors to local children as part of its Grow, Cook, Eat holiday project.

The project is funded by charity Help a Capital Child and will give youngsters the opportunity to sow and grow. There will also be a chance to do some cooking and, most importantly, taste and eat garden produce.

Grow, Cook, Eat is open to children, aged between six and 11, who enjoy getting their hands dirty and like tasty food.

The sessions are free and run from 10am-1pm, on 25 July, and 1, 8, 15 August. Later in the year, a Halloween special is due to take place on 24 October. Spaces are limited, so call or just drop by the garden to book.

St Mary's – which is also supported by the Council and The Learning Trust – took the Best Voluntary Organisation Garden prize in the 2010 Hackney in Bloom competition. It also received a Green Pennant Award, a national recognition of high quality green spaces managed by community groups.

It's all go in Mabley Meadow

THE group behind a wildflower meadow in Mabley Green, E9, have put together a programme of activities for summer and early autumn.

The Mabley Green User Group transformed an area at its southern end into a field of spectacular wildflowers last summer.

Now everything is up and running, a series of events and planting days are planned. On 31 July, from 1-4pm, there will be a chance to learn how a log can be turned into a mushroom farm.

Following on from a successful workshop on 18 June, local sculptor Gary March will be working at the meadow from 1-14 August, creating benches. Come along to check out what's going on, or chip in, from 12noon-5pm, on the final day and help to put the finished benches into place.

There will also be a summer picnic on 20 August, from 12noon-3pm, as well as daffodil and bluebell bulb planting and seed sewing sessions in September and October.

This could bee heaven

Want to learn beekeeping?

A NEW programme aiming to train 75 new beekeepers over the next year has been launched in Hackney.

Capital Bee is part of the Capital Growth programme, set up to encourage food growing in London.

Rosie Boycott, journalist and Chair of London Food, launched the programme last month at St Mary's Secret Garden in Hackney, one of the programme's seven training sites across the city.

Trainers Gustavo Montes De Oca, and Zoe Palmer also work with young people at local social enterprise, The Golden Company, which produces honey, hives and cosmetics. Two more trainers, Ian Bailey and Alessia Boli, will also be working with students at several hives in Hackney City Farm.

London has over 2,500 registered hives, so people are never far from a honeybee. Those who don't want to work with bees directly, can encourage them by growing bee-friendly plants ranging from flowers in a window box to a fruit tree in the garden, or by just allowing weeds to grow.

Lovebox 2011

15-17 July, Victoria Park, Grove Road, E3

You've got to hand it to Groove Armada, organisers of festival Lovebox: they know a good headliner when they see one. Having Snoop Dogg as the star draw of the annual Victoria Park party is more 'westsiiiide' than leftfield but you could already almost hear the squeaks of thousands of sweaty hands wringing in anticipation.

Moreso, 'The Doggfather' will be performing his first and arguably best album, Doggystyle. Allegedly with a fondness for Coronation Street, the pooch-punning rapper is also bringing many of the original 1990s Death Row Records crew: Tha Dogg Pound, RBX, The Lady of Rage and Warren G.

The Apprentice winner Tim Campbell was the guest speaker at the Hackney Schools' Mentoring Programme graduation

Tim Campbell spoke to 200 young people from seven borough schools about the importance of mentors in his life.

Tim, who went on to carve out a successful career as a social entrepreneur and motivational speaker after winning a £100,000 a year job with Lord Sugar, also encouraged the students to make contacts and keep networking. He said: "Mentoring is a fabulous opportunity for young people and it was great to see so many potential future entrepreneurs at the event today."

The 16 June event at St John-at-Hackney Church, E5, was the finale of the Hackney Schools' Mentoring Programme (HSMP), a project that sees businesspeople from the City of London volunteer their time to offer advice to Year 10 pupils over the course of an academic year.

The scheme offers students support with key skills like CV writing and interview techniques, as well as organising social events such as ice-skating.

Set up in 1996 by the East London Business Alliance (ELBA), the programme aims to help Hackney young people get ready for the world of work, increase their self-confidence, improve academic performance and raise aspirations.

Mentoring takes place after school, with mentors receiving training, followed by support sessions, advice and feedback from HSMP.

Poetry in motion

BUDDING poet Ella Belton-Saunders has had her work recognised by the National Trust.

The 12-year-old, from Clapton Girls' Technology College, was inspired to enter the trust's 'Landlines' competition on the theme of the great outdoors.

More than 1,700 entries were whittled down to just 12, in two categories, by judges Joe Bell, Director of National Poetry Day, and Ian McMillan, presenter of Radio 3's The Verb. Ella's evocative work 'The Blue Lake' was named runner-up in the under-16 category.

The piece will now be published in the September edition of the National Trust's magazine and in an 'Ode to the Countryside' poetry book, and she will also receive a VIP day out at a National Trust attraction.

She said: "I was so surprised as I didn't think I would be a winner. I enjoyed writing the poem and am very proud it won."

Rashmika and Clapton Girls head teacher, Cheryl Day

Top student lands RADA spot

IT'S little wonder the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts (RADA) auditions 3,500 hopefuls annually when its powerhouse alumni includes names like Lord Attenborough, Kenneth Branagh, Ralph Fiennes, Mark Rylance, Fiona Shaw and Maggie Gyllenhaal.

Now E8 resident Rashmika Torchia, 19, is about to study at the 'Oxbridge of drama schools' after winning one of only 15 coveted RADA female actor spots.

The former Clapton Girls' Technology College student has already been making her mark as a talented performer.

In 2008, she was commended for having one of the top-10 GCSE Drama results nationwide, and has appeared in BBC1's 'Spooks', 'Macbeth' at the Arcola Theatre and Hackney Empire's 'A Midsummer Night's Madness'.

Rashmika, who also mentors other young actors in East London, said: "It feels like a dream come true. I hope I can inspire other young people in Hackney to see that if you stay focused and work hard you really do achieve your goals."

Awards for local colleges

HCC students in the lab

TWO Hackney colleges have scooped prizes at this year's London Education Partnership Awards.

BSix Sixth Form College and Hackney Community College (HCC) both received plaudits at the ceremony, which recognised educational programmes that assist talented young people and adults to go on to higher education.

HCC's sports academy received the 'supporting journeys' award for its work with young sports people on the field and in the classroom. BSix won the 'building bridges' accolade for its 'raising aspirations' university partnership programme. It sees students attend lectures by university academics, and spend time studying at a university summer school. So far, three graduates of the programme have been offered Oxbridge places.

Ian Ashman, HCC principal, said: "It's great to see Hackney in the spotlight for all the right reasons. These awards are well-deserved recognition for the staff in Hackney's colleges and the organisations they work with – and the inspirational achievements of our students."

BSix Principal, Ken Warman, added: "We are so pleased to receive this acknowledgement for such an innovative and ground-breaking programme. Above all, it is an award for all our partners on the scheme."

There will be chances to win tickets to see Brit Award-winning rapper Tinie Tempah and other prizes throughout the day. Local sports clubs showcased at the festival are also being offered business development workshops as part of the project. Events are funded by the Olympic Lottery Distributor and developed by charity East London Business Alliance.

One Movement takes place in Clissold Park, N4, 1-5pm, on 30 July. Young people aged under 15 will need to bring a signed consent form on the day, which can be downloaded from the website.

Funding your sporting dream

THE Council is encouraging talented young sports stars to apply for financial support through the latest round of Hackney Youth Sports Fund (YSF) grants.

The awards recognise the achievements of promising athletes, and are also available to coaches, clubs and community groups providing sporting opportunities to young people in the borough.

Current recipients include Josie Gummer, 14, one of the top sailors in the country for her age, who learnt to sail at West Reservoir Centre in Stoke Newington; Kim Pham, who is British under-18 weightlifting champion; Ewan Clegg, a member of Britain's cadet baseball team; and Sharon Jones Barnes, who represented England at the European Wheelchair Badminton Championships in June.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Culture and Community Services, said: "The YSF is there to help young people keep their sporting dreams alive. Costs can really add up which is why this fund is so important."

The Council set up the fund after wresting £300,000 from Nike for using the borough's logo on a range of sportswear, without permission. This round of applications closes on 29 July, with two further rounds taking place later in the year.

Cast members of Dementia Diaries in rehearsal

Dementia discussed

A NEW play to be performed at a local theatre is looking at how dementia affects sufferers, carers and families.

'Dementia Diaries' at the Rosemary Branch Theatre, N1, explores responses to and preconceptions about dementia. Told through the interweaving monologues of an Anglo-Polish family and their Polish carer, the play – by Maria Jastrzebska – focuses on strained relationships within a family struggling to look after someone with the disease. Developed with help from clinicians and nurses, critics have praised the drama's at times surreal humour and its insight into what life can be like for carers.

There are over 820,000 people living with dementia in the UK today, a number forecast to rise, according to Alzheimer's Research UK.

Caused by a gradual death of brain cells beyond normal aging, dementia leads to the loss of memory, understanding, judgment and language.

'Dementia Diaries' runs from 12 to 14 July.

Help to stop smoking

CITY and Hackney Centre for Mental Health has trained 23 staff as smoking cessation advisors.

They will provide psychological support to smokers with mental health difficulties to help them quit tobacco, taking them through the thought processes of giving up and supporting them to make informed decisions.

Life expectancy for people with chronic mental illness is shorter than those without. The initiative aims to improve the physical health of this group by showing the harmful effects of smoking and offering treatment.

Kate Organ, Lead Pharmacist at the unit, said: "I have seen first-hand the benefits of this service. One individual's facial complexion, after just two weeks of quitting, changed from a greyish matt to full of colour and radiance. He also reported increased energy levels and easier breathing."

The project was a collaboration between the mental health centre – run by East London NHS Foundation Trust – and City and East London Tobacco Control Alliance.

Using condoms is the most effective way to prevent the spread of sexually transmitted infections (STIs)

Don't wait for symptoms

NHS East London and the City is urging more people to get tested for sexually transmitted infections (STIs), following a rise in diagnoses in London.

Results from the Health Protection Agency found a one per cent increase in people across the capital being identified with an STI. The East London trust that covers Hackney said the rise means more people are getting tested and treated for infections. However, work continues within communities to help people make safe decisions about sex, raise awareness of the signs and symptoms of STIs, and to encourage access to testing, it added.

Dr Jose Figueroa, Deputy Director of Public Health for NHS East London and the City, said: "Many STIs, like chlamydia, have no signs or symptoms; sometimes symptoms don't appear for weeks or months; or they go away even though you still have the infection. Therefore you can pass it to others without realising it. STI screening is free, confidential and should be part of your health routine especially if you practice unsafe sex or when you change partners."

He added: "Using condoms is still the most effective way of avoiding STIs and a wide range of condoms are available free from GPs, sexual health clinics, community pharmacies and many young people friendly settings."

Breath when you're singing

IT may not necessarily be easy on the ears, but singing can be very good for the lungs, according to a team of health experts.

On 6 July, vocal coach Phoene Cave, and local health care specialists will be explaining that a bit of crooning can strengthen breathing. As well as receiving singing lessons, residents can also have their lung capacity tested to identify problems such as chronic bronchitis and emphysema at the St Joseph's Hospice event.

Claire Davey, Physiotherapist at Homerton hospital, said: "Tests can measure the capacity of each individual's lungs and is important in helping us to assess any damage.

"It has also been found that singing can help people with breathing if they have a chronic lung condition."

Resources in Hackney for chronic lung conditions delivered by Homerton hospital include support network Breathe Easy Group, pulmonary rehabilitation and exercise and education programmes run at sites across the borough. The event takes place at St Joseph's Hospice, Mare Street, E8, on 6 July, 1.30-3.30pm.

Events to mark the 60th anniversary of the Festival of Britain take place this summer on the South Bank. For info visit: www.southbankcentre.co.uk

Great celebration

Clockwise from above: Somerford Grove Estate and its award plaque; Herbert Morrison; an advertisement for the Town Hall open house event; Abram Games' distinctive festival emblem; Clapton Square Gardens; Hackney strong man H Clarke at the South Bank, May 1959

DURING the late 1940s planning began for a national celebration to mark the centenary of the 1851 Great Exhibition and act as a 'tonic for the nation' following a decade of austerity since the Second World War.

This was the famous 'Festival of Britain', which ran from May to September 1951, and was the idea of journalist Gerald Barry and Deputy Prime Minister, Herbert Morrison, who had previously served as the Mayor of Hackney, and Labour MP for Hackney South. Morrison became so closely involved with the event that he was nicknamed 'Lord Festival'.

The London focus for the Festival was the renovated South Bank, where 22 pavilions told the story of Britain's contribution to progress and civilisation past, present and future, but exhibitions and events took place across the UK. The then Metropolitan Borough of Hackney opened the doors of the Town Hall to visitors. The event seems to have been a great success, but the Council's other major plan – to erect an open-air civic theatre in the middle of Clapton Square – came to nothing. The Clapton Square Protection Committee led a campaign objecting to the plan and also the estimated £17,000 cost, and in April 1951 the idea was vetoed by the Minister of Local Government and Planning, although the Square still played host to a number of concerts throughout the Festival period.

HACKNEY STRONG MAN AT FESTIVAL

Architecture was a key focus for the Festival, which aimed to promote good design in the rebuilding of post war bomb-damaged cities. Awards were made for architectural merit, including the low-rise Somerford Grove Estate, designed by Frederick Gibberd. A plaque recording this honour can still be seen on the side of one of the blocks.

A competition to design the Festival's emblem was won by artist Abram Games who had been a pupil at Hackney Downs School. His creation became one of the most distinctive pieces of British 20th century design. The logo appeared on everything from sweet wrappers to postage stamps and is still instantly recognisable today.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Front-of-house Hospitality Assistant, Ken Lam, left school to study art and design. But when his course finished he found it difficult to find work that matched his skills. The Hackney-born 19-year-old worked in a series of short-term jobs with little hope of career progression. But after a role at a family restaurant he realised a career in hospitality was a real option.
Ken has been training for his NVQ Level 2 in Customer Service and has recently started a cocktail course with bartending school, Shaker. He says: "The Hoxton Apprentice has been a fantastic experience. I have really enjoyed working with all the staff and apprentices here. I have learnt far more than I ever expected to."
Ken now plans to concentrate on perfecting his hospitality skills – incorporating some newly-acquired flare bartending techniques.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.
Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain a NVQ in Hospitality.
Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800.

Have your say on route changes

IN the lead up to and during the London 2012 Games, it is proposed that changes are made to the way some roads operate. The Olympic Route Network (ORN) and Paralympic Route Network (PRN) will allow athletes, officials and the media to travel reliably to and from events using Temporary Games Lanes. These lanes will be in operation mainly between July and September 2012 and they will have an impact throughout the capital.
For Hackney, the main area affected will be the north east, and specifically residents and businesses in Kings Park and Homerton wards.
Transport for London is consulting until 8 July on proposals for the ORN and PRN, which include changes to traffic signal timings, some restricted turns, suspension of parking or loading bays and pedestrian crossings.
To view maps of the routes and take part in the consultation visit: www.tfl.gov.uk/corporate/projectsandschemes/20054.aspx

Welcome to this year's Summer Activities Guide.

Hackney Council has teamed up with The Learning Trust and GLL to provide a whole range of indoor and outdoor events and activities throughout the summer to ensure young people have plenty of things to do.

We are providing a variety of mainly FREE activities including play schemes, arts and culture, sports and outdoor activities at play areas, leisure centres and parks across the borough, as well as the Summer Plus programme at youth centres where 11-19 year olds can enjoy themselves, meet new people and learn something new. Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, welcomed the Summer programme, saying: "Our young people are our greatest asset and they are leading the way in shaping activities and services to meet their needs. The summer activities programme offers a great variety of things to do across the borough while allowing young people to display their fantastic talent and resourcefulness."

We hope young people and their families enjoy the guide and take the opportunity to try out some of the activities we have on offer.

Tell us what you think?

We would like to know what you think about the 2011 Summer Activities Guide and your feedback will be used to help us to carry on improving future publications and the services and activities on offer. Please take five minutes to complete the survey online at www.younghackney.org or www.hackney.gov.uk

The Youth Service is changing!

The Council is creating a new service for young people age 8 – 19 called Young Hackney. It's going live this summer, with a new approach to the way we run youth activities and support. Over the coming year we'll also be upgrading and improving youth centres across the borough, with four new Young Hackney centres opening in June 2012. In addition, we'll be working with a younger age group; so there will be more activities for junior members of our clubs, age 8 and over.

What's changed?

Previously services for young people in Hackney were run by three separate teams within the Council, each with a slightly different role:

- The Youth Service ran activities and clubs for all young people
- Youth Support (YST) offered individual support for young people who needed it.
- The Youth Offending Team (YOT) gave more intensive support for young people who had entered the criminal justice system.

These three teams will now come together into a single service, called Young Hackney.

Why change?

Don't worry – we're keeping the best bits of the old service! You can expect exactly the same mix of activities, events, awards, accreditations and advice as before. However, Young Hackney workers will now be working in teams, sharing their skills and experience. So, as well as running activities for all young people, Young Hackney workers will be able to offer individuals support services, such as or housing and health advice.
Young Hackney is about making sure you enjoy life to the full, as well as helping you to resolve the difficult issues that confront you, so you can find your own path to a successful future.

Where will I find Young Hackney?

Young Hackney Units (the name for the new teams) will be based at the youth projects listed on this page and at the new Young Hackney centres, opening in 2012.

What can you expect from Young Hackney?

We'll be working with young people across the borough, offering:

- Youth activities such as sports, arts, multimedia, homework
- The chance to get involved in your community, for example through the Youth Forums or Ambassador programmes
- Accredited programmes such as Arts Award or Duke of Edinburgh's
- Employment and training advice
- Extra support, when and where you need it
- A safe place to go, open to all
